Voters' second pick may be key in race

- Health minister Gary Mar took commanding lead on first ballot
- Rivals Alison Redford, Doug Horner remain upbeat

Some Alberta voters could have more of an impact on the race for premier with their second-choice candidate, analysts say.

If Gary Mar, Alison Redford or Doug Horner are not able to top the 50 per cent mark on the second ballot Oct. 1, the third-place finisher's votes are given to whomever supporters indicated as their second choice.

Mar earned nearly 41 per cent of votes cast in the first ballot Saturday, but he is not unbeatable said Mount Royal University political scientist Keith Brownsey, who believes the second-choice provision favours Redford, the former justice minister.

"There's no telling in this process," he said. "It happened in 2006 and it's how the province got Ed Stelmach."

Stelmach, the outgoing premier, was the overwhelming second choice on ballots that favoured Ted Morton in the last Tory race, and used that support to push past fellow candidate Jim Dinning.

Redford said name recognition may have served some of her rivals better early on, but believes many voters are quickly warming to her campaign.

"In some of those cases where you might see that second-choice phenomena, it's partly because they may have had familiarity with another candidate and are still pondering all that through," she said.

But Edmonton political scientist Chaldea Mensah believes Mar would do very well as the second choice on ballots.

"His support is cross-cutting the divides in the party — north, south, rural and urban," he said.

Mar said he was "delighted" with the support he received Saturday, but noted some work remains.

"There's always room for

Campaign notes

- When asked about the second-choice ballot provision yesterday, former deputy premier Doug Horner said his campaign is targeting first-choice supporters and is focused on getting them to the polls Oct. 1.
- Political scientist Keith Brownsey pointed to low voter turnout Saturday (59,361 ballots were submitted) as indication the race may still be wide open if voters turn out in droves Oct. 1.
- Three candidates — Ted Morton, Rick Orman and Doug Griffiths — were eliminated following the first Tory ballot Saturday. None to date have publicly pledged support for one of the remaining contenders.

improvement.... We have got thousands more people that we know will support us but we have got to get them a membership and get them out to vote," he said.

Farrell looks to revamp review process

The city auditor and city manager could be facing a more rigorous performance evaluation if one alderman gets her way.

Ald. Druh Farrell has put forward a notice of motion for today's council meeting suggesting city council seek external consultants to develop a performance-evaluation criterion. Ald. Gord Lowe said there is currently an evaluation process in place but added Mayor Naheed Nenshi has been pushing for a change.

"I understand that the mayor is anxious to have a more rigorous criteria around that so it will be interesting to see what she (Ald. Farrell) has to say about that," said Lowe.

Family goes missing en route to Calgary

An Ontario family en route to Calgary has been deemed missing after they were last heard from nearly three weeks ago.

Brampton mother Jacqueline Davis, 44, and her three children, Fydney, Jalen and Caleb, were last seen on Aug. 27, when they were leaving for their cross-country road trip. It's believed they were driving a 1998 silver Ford Taurus with the Ontario licence plate BMJH 247. ● METRO

Video yields clues in destructive vehicle blaze

- Four automobiles destroyed, two damaged in early-morning incident
- Damage could have been worse, say witnesses

JEREMY NOLAS
@METRONEWS.CA

Popping noises and a bone-jarring scream alerted Robin Hadley to a horrifying scene early yesterday morning.

The 27-year-old sprang from bed and raced out of her apartment building toward a red glow in the adjacent parking lot.

It was there that she saw her car, a newly purchased Mazda3, engulfed in flames.

"I ran to my car to move it," she recalled later in the day. "I wasn't thinking, but another guy held me back There was nothing we could do."

The fire originated in an abandoned van parked next to Hadley's car in the 1200 block of 13th Avenue Southwest around 2:30 a.m.

Calgary police arson Det. Scott Sampson said security-camera footage from a nearby coffee shop shows two men acting suspicious in the vicinity of the vehicle moments before an explosion.

"That van had been abandoned there for at

Wanted

- Two individuals caught on camera near a van that burst into flames yesterday morning are wanted by police for questioning.
- One is described as a native male who is approximately 30 years old and sporting a mohawk. The other is a white male, about 40 years of age, who was wearing shorts at the time of the incident.

Arson Det. Scott Sampson said police plan to release video footage of the incident sometime later today.

least three years," Sampson said. "It's unknown if it (the blaze) was intentional or if they were smoking in there or whatever."

Hadley said insurance will likely cover the cost for a new vehicle and she's thankful no one was hurt.

"The flames were as high as the third floor (of the apartment building)," she said. "I was told if it was made of wood the whole building would have been lost."

Thousands hit pavement for Terry

Terry Fox lost his life to cancer 30 years ago, but Calgarians taking part in yesterday's Terry Fox Run say his legacy is impossible to forget.

"I remember seeing Terry Fox run through my small town in Saskatchewan 30 years ago," Brent Morrice said.

Morrice lost both his parents to cancer and said seeing the more than 1,600 participants in the run shows how far-reaching the disease is.

Aaron Edelstein remembers joining the first annual run when he was in grade school. Now, after losing two grandparents to cancer, he finds the run has a different meaning.

"I still sometimes get those tears in my eyes," he said.

Edelstein said his son celebrated his sixth birthday Saturday and asked for a Terry Fox poster as a present.

"Terry Fox is a superhero to him."

In total, $180,000 was raised at yesterday's run — $15,000 more than in 2010.

Locals out for netball record

► Goal is to raise $25,000 for Right to Play ► As of yesterday, just under $16,000 had been raised

KATIE TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

After more than 3,000 points scored, an attempt to set the record for the world's longest netball game was drawing to a close yesterday.

The game, spearheaded by Martin Parnell of Cochrane, began on Friday and, after 61 hours, drew to a close this morning at 6:30 a.m.

Parnell is no stranger to endurance, having run 250 marathons last year to raise more than $250,000 for Right to Play. But he said this feat presented unique challenges.

"It's very different," he said. "A lot of the tricks I learned through running in the ultra (marathon), I've definitely used here."

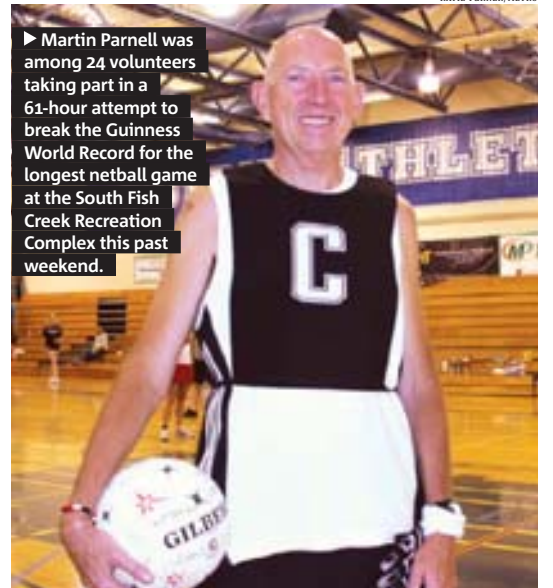

Fellow participant Lawrence Mafuru has been a guide on Mount Kilimanjaro and plans to set the record for the fastest climb up the Tanzanian mountain in 2013.

Even after climbing Kilimanjaro more than 50 times, Mafuru said playing in the world's longest netball game is arduous.

"It's a challenge, but it's fun."

KATIE TURNER/METRO

► Martin Parnell was among 24 volunteers taking part in a 61-hour attempt to break the Guinness World Record for the longest netball game at the South Fish Creek Recreation Complex this past weekend.

Omnibus tops Commons agenda

- ▶ Parliamentarians are back to work today
- ▶ It's the first chance the Conservatives have to move on their law-and-order election promises

JESSICA SMITH

@METRONEWS.CA

METRO CANADA IN OTTAWA

The Conservatives are set to introduce a massive omnibus bill on terrorism, youth crime, wiretapping and other planks of their tough-on-crime platform.

Terrorism tops the list. The Tories campaigned on allowing victims to sue terrorists and supporters.

Two controversial temporary anti-terrorism measures implemented after 9-11 will be reintroduced, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said in a recent TV interview.

Crime legislation — on young offenders, sentencing and child predators — that was introduced but not passed before the election is also expected.

The opposition parties are already raising alarms. The New Democrats say measures that would allow law enforcement to monitor Internet activity without a warrant will amount to “legalized widespread snooping on average citizens.” The Tories say the measures will give law enforcement agencies “up-to-date tools” to fight crime.

The bill

Here's what the omnibus bill is expected to do on:

TERRORISM

- ▶ Allow police to detain terrorism suspects for up to three days without charges.
- ▶ Let judges jail witnesses who won't testify about terrorism.

YOUTH CRIME

- ▶ Simplify pre-trial detention rules so youths accused of serious crimes — including property crimes over $5,000, sexual exploitation and murder — can be jailed before trial.
- ▶ Expand “violent offence” definition so youths who endanger public safety during a crime can be jailed.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

- ▶ Make telecom providers install surveillance software, allowing police to track Internet and mobile-phone activity.
- ▶ Make telecoms disclose customer information to authorities.

SENTENCING

- ▶ End house arrest for perpetrators of violent crimes, including sexual assault.
- ▶ End pardons for sexual assaults on minors, offenders with three convictions prosecuted by indictment.

CHILD MOLESTATION

- ▶ Create or increase mandatory minimum jail time for certain sexual offences involving children.

CASH IN THIS WEEK ON ALL GOLD JEWELLERY WHILE THE ROADSHOW IS IN CALGARY!

By Jason Delong
STAFF WRITER

Roll up your sleeves and get ready to start your spring cleaning early this year. The Treasure Hunters Roadshow opens tomorrow in Calgary and is looking for anything old. Remember those musical instruments you played with as a kid? You know, the ones that have been stored away in the attic for the past 30 years. Well it's time to dig 'em out, along with any other forgotten treasures. You might be sitting on a small fortune and not even know it.

Roadshow representative, Archie Davis, explains what the event is all about. "It's a chance to sell just about anything that's old, and get a fair price. We host over 3,000 shows every year throughout the U.S. and Canada. Gold and silver, timepieces, war memorabilia, jewellery, fine art, coins and just about anything valuable can be sold at the Roadshow. This event is popular because it puts money in people's pockets. At a typical show, we will see hundreds of people during the event.

TREASURE HUNTERS ROADSHOW HAS BEEN TOURING THE WORLD SINCE 2001. THIS YEAR ALONE, WE WILL VISIT 3,000 CITIES AND OVER HALF A MILLION PEOPLE WILL CASH IN!

We will see a few unusual items, but mostly we will see a lot of old coins, gold jewellery, and a wide variety of musical instruments and paintings." Last week at a show in Missouri, a retired dentist walked in with over 5 lbs. of dental gold fillings. "I would say that is pretty unusual, wouldn't you say?" commented Davis. The gentleman received over $31,243 for his gold fillings. He told Davis that over the years he would keep the extracted teeth when the owners didn't want them. He would throw them in a jar and over the years it added up to over 5 lbs. of gold. Now, not everyone has a jar of gold teeth lying around, but according to Davis, more than you might think have some sort of gold they can cash in. Davis says, "The Roadshow receives a fair amount of gold each day of the event."

Broken jewellery, gold coins and dental gold are all valuable items with today's high gold prices. Whether you have 5 lbs. of gold or a single gold tooth, a pickup full of old military items or a single sword, you should visit the Roadshow this week. It's free, it's fun and it could put some money in your pocket, maybe a lot of money!

Quake rocks India

► Rescuers work to find people trapped under fallen buildings ► Nepal, Bangladesh also shaken

A strong earthquake shook northeastern India and Nepal, killing at least 16 people, damaging buildings and sending law-makers in Nepal's capital running into the streets.

The quake, with a preliminary magnitude of 6.9, struck at 6:10 p.m. local time yesterday and was felt across northern and eastern India, including in the capital of New Delhi. It triggered at least two aftershocks of magnitude 6.1 and 5.3, Indian seismology official R.S. Dattatreya said. He warned more aftershocks were possible.

At least five people in India's Sikkim state were killed and more than 50 were injured, according to the state's top official, Chief Secretary Karma Gy-

Ex-Air Canada pilot, wife killed in Reno air show crash

A former Air Canada pilot and his wife were among nine people killed in Nevada after a 1940s-era plane crashed during an air show.

George Hewitt, 60, and his wife Wendy, 57, were sitting with a group of vintage-military-plane owners when a P-51 Mustang crashed near a grandstand at the Reno air show on Friday, killing them instantly.

The couple reportedly had moved recently from Washington to Fort Mohave, Ariz., after Hewitt retired.

He was born in Winnipeg and flew as a pilot with Air Canada for about 40 years.

The Seattle Times reported Hewitt owned a small post-Second World War plane originally built by the same company that made the P-51 Mustang.

ECONOMY

Greek crisis may spill over

The tiny country known for sun-baked islands and historic ruins seems an unlikely trigger for the next global economic tsunami.

Yet just as the startling collapse of Lehman was followed by the worst recession in six decades, a Greek default has the potential to send the world tumbling again.

Greece has said it has enough cash to carry its debt to mid-October, by which time it will need about $8 billion to stave off default. Eventually, its partners in the 17-country eurozone will balk at extending more of their money.

According to Paul Taylor, chief investment officer with BMO Harris Private Banking, the danger to Canada's economy is what a Greek default does to confidence and credit.

UBS head says he won't resign

Oswald Gruebel, the chief executive of UBS, has dismissed calls for his resignation as politically motivated, even as the Swiss banking giant raised its estimated loss by a rogue trader to $2.3 billion US.

UBS AG had previously put the loss at $2 billion when news of the scandal first broke last Thursday.

UBS also confirmed that the trader, 31-year-old Kweku Adoboli, was already under investigation by the bank when he revealed his actions to authorities last Wednesday.

Obama makes jobs, economy top priorities

- Plan proposes minimum tax rate for earners of more than $1 million
- Deficits to be reduced by $1.2 billion to $1.5 billion over 10 years

Even as President Barack Obama prepares his opening bid on long-term debt reduction, the White House wants to keep the focus on jobs and is determined to avoid getting sucked into another budget fight with lawmakers.

Administration officials see the task of attending to deficits as necessary but not necessarily urgent, compared with the need to revive the economy and increase employment.

The White House also sees this as the time to draw sharp contrasts with

Points of view

- Republicans have pledged to oppose the increase in taxes on the wealthy.
- New Democrats are waiting to see what Obama will do with Medicare health program.

Republicans.

So when Obama announces at least $2 trillion in deficit reduction measures today, he is not expected to offer all the compromises he reached with House Speaker John Boehner in July.

The plan represents an economic bookend to the $447 billion in tax cuts and new public-works spending that Obama has proposed as a short-term measure to stimulate the economy and create jobs.

SMOKING STATS HARD TO INHALE

HIGH PLAINS DRIFTER

JAMES CALLSEN
METRO CALGARY

A recent survey showing that teenagers are still picking up the awful, nasty habit of smoking has got me, well, fuming.

According to Health Canada, over 10,000 teens started smoking last year.

A statistic that is equally maddening as it is confusing.

Why would anyone in this day and age want to start smoking? Maybe I'm just getting older and crankier, or maybe I remember how hard it was to quit after 16 years of smoking and how much money I literally paid to kill my lungs or give myself cancer.

I'm not sure why anyone would start smoking anymore. It made sense 30 years ago.

You could smoke anywhere. Literally. In friends' houses, shopping malls, doctors offices, hospital rooms, university classrooms, the smell of cigarette smoke was a constant.

However in the year 2011, smokers are among the most marginalized and ostracized people in our society — with good reason.

I'm not sure what's attractive about standing outside your place of work on a cold, -25-degree day in January to get your nicotine fix, while the rest of your co-workers point and laugh.

"There are plenty of ways to rebel against your parents, fit in, stand out or look cool beyond picking up smoking.

Dye your hair, get pierced or start a really loud band."

I'm not sure what's appealing about walking back into your office and having everyone tell you that you stink, about having members of the opposite (or same) sex tell you that they find you attractive and all but that they just can't hook up with a smoker. And who could blame them?

When I was a teenager in the '90s, everyone who was cool was a smoker. Kurt Cobain, Slash, Johnny Depp, Kate Moss and countless others were often photographed with an omnipresent cancer stick.

Sneaking a smoke with your friends was often your first real act of rebellion, a way to fit in, stand out or look tough. Even 10 years ago, it was possible to look classy while smoking a cigarette.

Fast-forward to today and it's about as fashionable as injecting black-tar heroin at a dinner-party table and about as classy as wearing a T-shirt to the opera.

There are plenty of ways to rebel against your parents, fit in, stand out or look cool beyond picking up smoking.

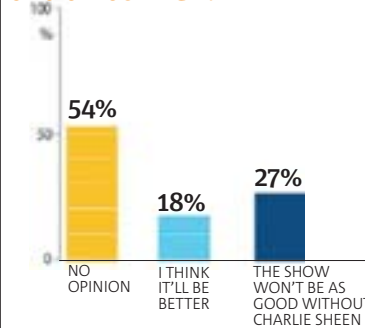

Dye your hair, get pierced or start a really loud band. Because while you might be cool when you're a teenager, there's nothing cool about being an ostracized, stinky, wrinkly middle-aged dude standing outside in the winter just to get their fix.

Letters

Why are people starving to death in Somalia, Ethiopia and Kenya? The world has no shortage of food. Americans, Canadians and Europeans are dying of diabetes, cholesterol and obesity. The western countries are consuming too much food at the expense of the rest of the planet. Just to feed our appetite for meat requires huge amounts of agricultural land to grow plant-based feed to fatten livestock animals.

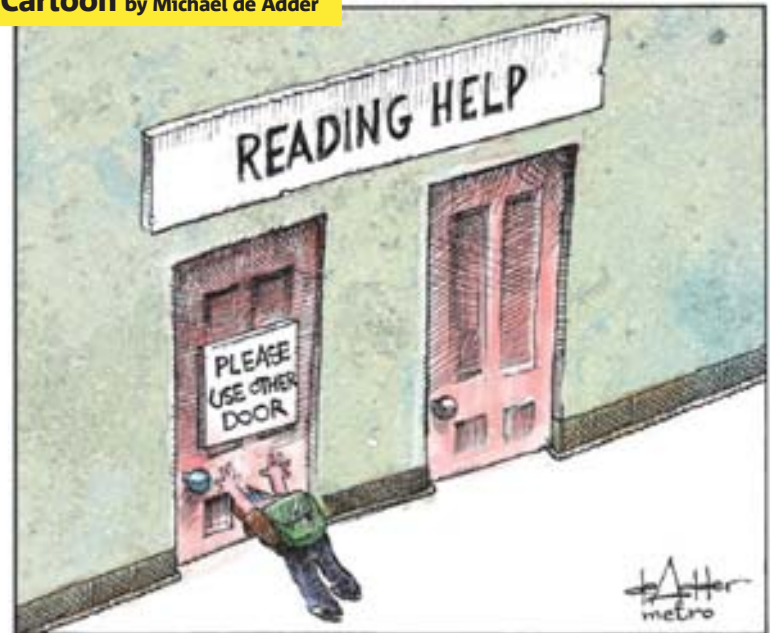

We are on a downward spiral. We treat our pet rocks and gardens better than children and people experiencing real human suffering.

Decisions are made all for the sake of money, power and privilege, or should I say control of oil and resources.

I hate to go all Jesus on you, but Christ did say that it is easier for a camel to go through an eye of a needle than a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God. This biblical quote makes a lot of sense. Greed is a sin and it has played a major part in shaping the world and its citizens into either haves or have nots.

Recovered message in a bottle a 'miracle'

A Japanese teenager expressed her gratitude yesterday after a U.S. sailor in Hawaii found a bottle she had tossed into the sea off Japan's southern coast as a child.

Saki Arikawa, 17, said she had almost forgotten about the bottle and initially couldn't believe it was found after five years.

She said "it's a miracle" the bottle was found. "It's incredible," she said.

The clear glass bottle was found Thursday by Navy Petty Officer Jon Moore during a beach cleanup at the Pacific Missile Range Facility on Kauai island.

The bottle contained four origami cranes — symbols of peace in Japan — as well as a photo of Arikawa's elementary school class and a note dated March 25, 2006, and signed by Arikawa saying she wanted it to be "a graduation memory."

The bottle was one of five she tossed into the ocean in 2006 as her sixth-grade class graduated from Kokubu Elementary School in Kagoshima. Three other bottles had previously been recovered, including two in Alaska and a third at another location in Hawaii. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dolphin-friendly Freeman

► Actor Morgan Freeman talks about working with Winter the dolphin in Dolphin Tale

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

There are few actors that can upstage legendary Oscar-winning thespian Morgan Freeman. But of course that's exclusively including human actors. In his latest movie, Freeman's co-star is a dolphin. "That's why they play such big roles (in our lives)," said Freeman recently about the animals' natural acting ability. "And it's like they're doing their own thing — you don't know if they're trained to do this stuff or if they're showing off. I'm fascinated by them because I've seen them do stuff like that in the wild."

Specifically, Freeman is talking about Winter, the charming subject and star of this Friday's release of Dolphin Tale, an inspiring story of a young marine mammal that was saved with the use of a prosthetic after losing its tail in a tragic accident.

"I think this is a particularly special dolphin," insisted director Charles Martin Smith. "She has so much personality and she's such a character. She's basically the equivalent of a human 10-year-old ... when I first started working on the script for this I sat with her for three days and watched her and (observed) all the things that she does that I could write into the script."

Among those traits included some interesting human-like habits and even an affinity for human contact. For Freeman, it was an agreeable improvement on some of his previous co-stars.

"I worked with a bear one time and the guy said 'don't look him in the eye'. That's a note I need — don't look the damn thing in the eye," laughed Freeman. "(Winter) has been in this aquarium for most of her life and even if she was wild, it wouldn't bother me because somehow it appears that (dolphins) have the same kind of affinity for us as we have for them."

Freeman's

animal love

► Morgan Freeman on his love of animal movies: "The first book I ever read was about a horse — Black Beauty — and I was lost in animal stories after that," said Freeman. "We have a kind of symbiosis with animals that we interact with."

Fleshing out female characters on television

► Whitney Cummings hopes her new show challenges female TV stereotypes

When provocative comedy writer and performer Whitney Cummings was developing her own self-titled series, she didn't have to dig deep into her imagination to come up with a unique lead role.

Her own life was already far different from those of the female characters she was seeing in most TV comedies, and seemed a rich source from which to mine funny stories that her generation could relate to, she says.

"I found myself not find-

"Most TV shows have women on the sidelines and women are the setups for the jokes and very one-dimensional, so that kind of bored me, and there were not a lot of women on TV for women to look up to."

WHITNEY CUMMINGS

ing anyone on TV, except for maybe Tina Fey, who I thought was a strong, funny, outspoken woman who is in charge," the 29-year-old statuesque standup star, who lives in Los Angeles, said during a recent stop in the city.

Debuting today on CTV and Thursday on NBC, the multi-camera comedy Whitney sees the witty and whip-smart Cummings playing a character based on herself.

In the debut episode, she and her boyfriend, Alex (Chris D'Elia), attend a wedding, where Whitney commits several faux pas.

The episode also sees Whitney trying to put the spark back in her relationship with Alex by seducing him — a move that proves disastrous.

Unlike many female characters onscreen, Whitney is in no rush to get married.

Cummings said she's in a serious relationship in real life but witnessed a lot of divorce in her family, and she wanted Whitney to reflect a generation "who is fully aware of the statistics that half of all marriages end."

I should have been fired: Sheen

Charlie Sheen seems to have buried the hatchet.

Appearing on Thursday's Tonight Show, the former star of Two and a Half Men radiated a forgiving mood toward his old workplace. Asked by host Jay Leno if he's still angry at the sitcom's producers and network, he said no: He would have fired himself had he been in their shoes. Then he added with a laugh, "Well, maybe not like they did."

Sheen was dumped last March after the actor railed against his bosses, and they blasted him for his unpredictable behaviour as a drug-abusing, reckless playboy. "It was bad," Sheen said, summing up the clash, "and I own my part in that, and I just want to make everything right."

Asked why he thought

► Charlie Sheen

he should have been fired, Sheen explained, "I should have been a little more responsible about the condition I was showing up in."

He told Leno he has not had any contact with his former castmates, but said he felt no animosity toward them.

The hit CBS comedy returns for a new season today with Ashton Kutcher as Sheen's replacement.

Was life with Jen 'pathetic' for Brad?

► Actor in damage control after recent comments about his ex-wife

Brad Pitt is doing damage control after he made some less-than-complimentary remarks to Entertainment Weekly about life with Jennifer Aniston.

"It started feeling pathetic. It became very clear to me that I was intent on trying to find a movie about an interesting life, but I wasn't living an interesting life myself," Pitt told the magazine.

"I think that my marriage (to Aniston) had something to do with it. Trying to pretend the marriage was something that it wasn't."

But Pitt insists he's been taken out of context. "It grieves me that this was interpreted this way," Pitt says in a statement.

"Jen is an incredibly giving, loving and hilarious woman who remains my friend. It is an important relationship I value greatly. The point I was trying to make is not that Jen was dull, but that I was becoming dull to myself — and that, I am responsible for."

The more kids the merrier

Maybe David and Victoria Beckham aren't done having kids after all, as the soccer star hinted to Ellen DeGeneres that they'd be welcome to another baby.

"If we were lucky enough to have another one, it would be great," he said.

"We always spoke about having a big family. We love children."

"We are very blessed to have four healthy children, so if one comes along that would be amazing."

DeGeneres pointed out that another child would make five, bringing them to a family of seven, David's lucky number.

"What can I say? I love the number seven," he responded. ● METRO

Squash gets you fall ready

► This Squash Crumble will work as a side dish or even as a tasty dessert

The natural sweetness of butternut squash makes it a wonderfully versatile ingredient. This spiced and baked dish, for example, can be served as a sweet side alongside a roast and the traditional fixings or topped with ice cream for a delicious dessert.

Preparation:

1 Heat oven to 180 C (350 F). Coat a 23-by-33-cm (9-by-13-inch) baking dish with cooking spray.

2 To make filling, in bowl mix brown sugar, cornstarch, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Set aside.

3 Bring pot of water to boil. Add squash and cook 6 minutes, or until just tender. Drain thoroughly. In bowl, mix squash and apples. Add brown sugar mixture, toss well; transfer everything to baking dish.

4 To make topping, in a food processor combine flour, sugar, cinnamon and salt. Add butter and pulse until mix resembles coarse crumbs. Add pecans and pulse to chop and combine. Sprinkle topping evenly over apples and squash. Bake for 45 minutes, or until squash and apples are tender.

Ingredients:

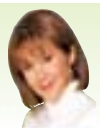

Filling:

- 45 ml (3 tbsp) brown sugar
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) cornstarch
- Pinch salt
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) cinnamon
- 1 ml (1/4 tsp) nutmeg
- 1 butternut squash (about 900 g or 2 pounds), peeled, seeded and cut into 2.5 cm (1-inch) chunks
- 3 baking apples (such as Granny Smith), peeled, cored and cut into small chunks

Topping:

- 250 ml (1 cup) all-purpose flour
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) granulated sugar
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) cinnamon
- Pinch salt
- 75 ml (5 tbsp) butter, cold
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) pecans

Reclaiming the backyard

► New book shows how to find stuff for your yard without making a trip to a store ► Learn you can do

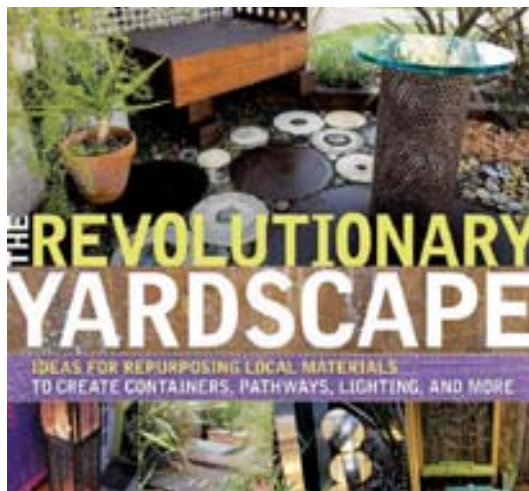

Trash talk has helped Matthew Levesque fashion an inventive career in garden design.

He holds "creative reuse" workshops, and his "yardscaping" creations made from locally available items have become austerity-chic collectibles.

"I'm trying to get people thinking about alternative sources for their materials," said Levesque, author of The Revolutionary Yardscape. "Lots of landscape people are beginning to pay attention."

A slumping economy is forcing consumers to be as imaginative about finding landscaping supplies as they are about using them. Levesque is a master at crafting yard decor from cast-off materials that otherwise would stuff landfills or litter vacant lots. He turns toolboxes into planters, and makes walkways from tumbled, recycled glass. He uses doors for fences and links small ceramic tubes into rain chains, a substitute for downspouts.

"It's the art of using what we've got," said Levesque, who also operates what he describes as a "thrift store for house parts" in San Francisco. "I use my garden as a test kitchen, trying things out to see if they work."

Ignore the cookie-cutter garden furnishings sold at big box stores and nurseries, Levesque said. Instead, reclaim building materials with recognizably local origins so you can make one-of-a-kind statements.

"What is a flowerpot but a hole with a bottom and sides? Through reuse, a great many things can fit that description," he said.

Where should you look for reclaimable building supplies? Salvage yards are great spots to start.

"They generally offer goods at reasonable prices, and often the proceeds go to an affiliated non-profit endeavour," he said. "This is a quick place to find beautiful old windows, doors, racks of sheet metal and other useful stuff."

Canada's billion-dollar-man 'just worked hard'

► One of our country's wealthiest businessmen came from humble beginnings

TURNING POINT

TERESA KRUIZE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

He is a superstar entrepreneur and according to Forbes, is worth $5.8 billion. Jim Pattison has come a long way from growing up in poverty and watching his family struggle to make ends meet.

He bought a car dealership in Vancouver, got into leasing and then moved on to media, the food industry and other ventures.

Today, the Jim Pattison

Group is Canada's third largest privately owned company, but when I ask him to share his story he stops me quickly.

"At our company we don't talk about ourselves," he says quietly. "We're not fancy and we didn't do much different. We just worked hard."

After much cajoling, I finally convince him to talk about business and the affable billionaire is willing to share his thoughts on how to survive in a challenging economy.

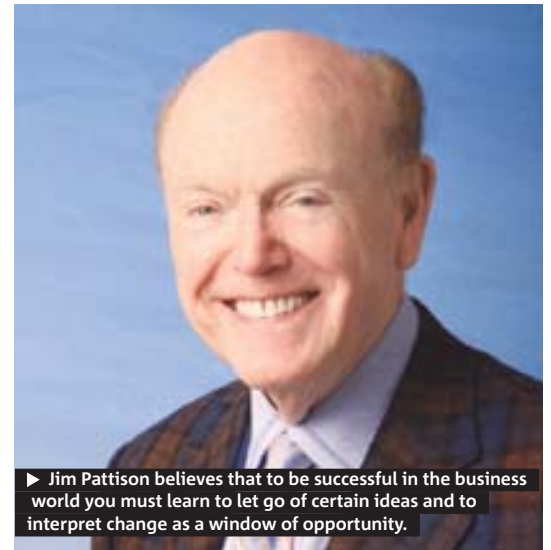

"When there's lots of change in the world there's also lots of opportunity. You have to follow up on the opportunities. If you stick with what you believe in you'll be successful."

But it's all about hard work and timing.

Tough times

Jim Pattison's 10 tips for surviving a downturn.

- 1 Out of adversity and change comes opportunity for something new.
- 2 Be alert and keep your eyes open.
- 3 Find the resources to make it happen.
- 4 Have the best price and quality to be competitive on a world wide basis.
- 5 Conduct yourself with integrity.
- 6 Don't worry about things you can't control.
- 7 If timing is on your side you have a chance
- 8 Treat people the way you want to be treated.
- 9 We all make mistakes but the key is not to "live" with your mistakes.
- 10 Know when it's time to move on ► Jim Pattison believes that to be successful in the business world you must learn to let go of certain ideas and to interpret change as a window of opportunity.

There's no sense in bashing your head against the wall if it's not going anywhere.

There are a lot of people with good ideas but if it's not commercially viable there's no sense sticking with something that isn't going well."

Pattison cautions everyone to be realistic in an economic downturn and to realize that every situation is unique.

What works in Newfoundland may not fly in B.C.

What's the bottom line from one of the best entrepreneurs ever to emerge from Canada?

"If you work hard and be honest then you'll be successful and that's about as simple as it gets."

"After having not been to school for a number of years because I played professional hockey, I wanted to get a contemporary education and prove to prospective employers that I wasn't just a jock."

Haskayne MBA 2005

Get in the game with an MBA. Gord did.

"What I learned in my Haskayne MBA has been critical to my success so far. I found that working in trading and sales is a lot like being on a hockey team – it's a pretty social place, you're measured regularly, and have to have tough skin and the ability not to let wins or losses change your approach. Having an MBA opened up doors for me and gave me tremendous confidence; I felt as prepared as everyone else who was hired to do the job. I wanted to make good money and I knew that having an MBA was certainly going to be good for me and my family."

DREW HINSHAW
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

In the age of auto-spellcheck, it's tempting to thumb out double-time memos with no regard for the art of spelling.

Still, career counsellors warn, your lack of SMS manners could cost you.

"People are losing the art of putting together a complete couple of sentences," says career coach Sue Thompson. "You need to consider to whom are you writing."

"It's all about building rapport," agrees Shirin Khamisa, founder of Careers By Design.

If your emails are responded to with snappish, unpunctuated replies — no "Hey, how are you," no ► Save the LOLs and BRBs for your pals outside of work.

"Nice to hear from you" — then you might, she suggests, keep your correspondence curt.

"But if it's a person who has a more personal touch, then I would reciprocate," she adds.

"Those niceties are very important in building relationships, even online — and especially online — because we need that glue to hold us together."

Older workers, Thompson notes, can be made uncomfortable by an overload of web abbreviations.

"Baby boomers are going to expect a fairly concise, but formal email," she says.

And they'll likely place

a greater importance on spelling, she adds.

"Some people will really consider your spelling, whether you know the difference between 'your' and 'you're.' Just respect the person to whom you're writing. That's what etiquette is."

Think a head

Personalize your signature

► If a picture's worth 1,000 words, then a low-resolution headshot can't hurt.

► "Attach a small photo in your signature," says Khamisa. "The next time you meet, you'll notice a difference in how you're received."

Three key ways to jinx a job

► Acing the interview isn't always easy; sabotaging it is quite a lot more simple ► Avoid these pre-job blunders

You already know to spell-check your resumé and give a nice firm handshake, but these days, there's a lot more between you and your new gig. Tony Lee, publisher of CareerCast.com, advises on the biggest red flags recruiters encounter.

Being too casual

"One of the biggest problems is people think of themselves as being pretty smart, so they think they can wing it — they'll impress companies and interviewers and recruiters just by being themselves," says Lee.

"But you really need to be ready to show why you're the best candidate and are ready for the job. Make sure you're not too casual in your approach."

Submitting a general application

Even if the positions you're applying for are similar, take the time to personalize each cover letter and resumé — it'll make you stand out from the majority of applicants who don't.

"One of the biggest complaints we hear from employers is that candidates aren't very savvy about applying for jobs," says Lee. "They fire off the same application for every job without tailoring it for that position, and without carefully looking for an opportunity that you'd be successful at."

Not explaining gaps in employment

If you haven't been working, you're far from alone. But it's important to account for that time to prospective employers.

"They're afraid that if you've been out of work for a couple years than you've fallen into bad habits. What you have to show is that you've been active," says Lee.

"If you can show that in the last year you helped manage three events at your children's schools that helped raise over $20,000, it shows that you've been active."

Advice? Do some Google housekeeping

You can clean up your Facebook profile, but if your Google search results aren't flattering, that's a little more difficult to work around.

One easy diversion that Lee suggests is to invite employers to visit your polished LinkedIn or Google+ profile so they don't have to search."

Rays continue to close gap on Red Sox

The ball struck David Price in the chest and bounced in the air, a hit that could have devastated Tampa Bay's playoff chances.

But Evan Longoria fielded the carom and threw to first for the out, Price stayed in the game and the Rays beat the Red Sox 8-5 yesterday to take three out of four in Boston and close within two games in the AL wild-card race.

The Red Sox have lost 11 of 14 and are left rooting for the New York Yankees, who play the Rays seven times in the last 10 games.

"To be able to do this against this team here, if that can't bolster your confidence nothing really can," Rays manager Joe Maddon said. "Now it becomes more viable. You can see the light at the end of the tunnel, and now it's not attached to an oncoming train."

Brady runs wild in Week 2

► Patriots quarterback Tom Brady, left, celebrates a touchdown last night in Foxboro, Mass.

► Patriots quarterback unstoppable again ► Sets pair of NFL records

Big-yardage games are becoming routine for Tom Brady. So is setting records.

Brady threw for 423 yards yesterday — six days after setting a single-game team record of 517 — and led the New England Patriots to a 35-21 win over the San Diego Chargers.

"It seems like he's always great," linebacker Rob Ninkovich said. "He's the best quarterback in the league."

The NFL mark for most yards passing in the first two games of a season, 854, lasted about three hours. Carolina rookie Cam Newton set that before Brady ended the day at 940 yards.

Brady became the first player in NFL history to follow a 500-yard passing performance with a 400-yard game, and the Patriots scored 30 points for the 10th straight regular-season game. He threw three touchdown passes and went 31 for 40 with no interceptions as the Patriots (2-0) scored on each of their four first-half possessions.

The Chargers (1-1) turned the ball over inside the Patriots' 35-yard line three times, leading to 17 points. They also were stopped on a fourth-and-goal at the one-yard line, and the Patriots started a 99-yard drive that ended with one of Brady's two scoring passes to Rob Gronkowski.

Brady, who connected with seven receivers, said simply, "We were able to spread the ball around."

Packers spoil Newton's big day

► Panthers rookie Cam Newton.

Aaron Rodgers threw for 308 yards and two scores and the Green Bay Packers withstood another 400-yard passing day from Carolina rookie Cam Newton to beat the Panthers 30-23 yesterday.

A week after throwing for 422 yards, Newton topped himself with an NFL rookie record 432 yards passing and a touchdown. He also ran for a short TD with 37 seconds left to bring Carolina (0-2) within seven, but the Packers (2-0) recovered the onside kick to seal the victory.

Rodgers found Greg Jennings for a 49-yard touchdown early in the third to put the Packers ahead for good. Then, after Clay Matthews stopped Newton on a fourth-down run inside the five, Rodgers found Jordy Nelson for an 84-yard touchdown to make it a two-possession game.

The Packers' defence forced Newton into three interceptions.

In other action yesterday:

► Ryan Fitzpatrick threw a six-yard touchdown to David Nelson with 14 seconds left and the Buffalo Bills scored five second-half TDs to overcome a 21-3 first-half deficit in a 38-35 win over the Oakland Raiders.

► Matthew Stafford threw two of his four TD passes to Calvin Johnson and the Detroit Lions are 2-0 after a 48-3 rout over the Kansas City Chiefs, the largest margin of victory ever for the Lions.

► The Pittsburgh Steelers bounced back from an opening weekend loss to Baltimore as Ben Roethlisberger threw for 298 yards and a TD in a 24-0 romp over the Seattle Seahawks.

► Mark Sanchez threw two TDs and Antonio Cromartie had two interceptions as the New York Jets beat the Jacksonville Jaguars 32-3.
